

THE STEAMER IOWA CITY lies at the forks of the Iowa and Cedar, having been laid up there for higher water. The owners have returned to the city. They think they could have got out of the river but doubted whether it was worth the doing. They went through with their barge and freight to New Boston, but could learn of little to be done on the Mississippi, and thought it best to lay up for a while. They are likely to have trouble with the dam at Wapello. The owners of it refuse to remove it. The Wapello Republican says that all the mill interests on the river, backed up by the rail roads, are determined to fight the removal of that dam to the utmost. This is a serious obstruction to the enterprise of our fellow townsmen who have built this boat. However successful they may be, yet lawsuits are vexatious and expensive.

u 7 THE STEAMER IOWA CITY is noticed by the E Muscatine Journal as at that place on Saturr day night, having rode out the terrible A "storm like a duck or a hero, and was bright o as a new pen the next morning."
e s DR. BOUCHER renews his card this week.

edj
prc
adi
853
l
ing
es
wit
see
HC